

FACTSWHAT DOES First City Bank
DO WITH YOUR PERSONAL INFORMATION?*Why?

Financial companies choose how they share your personal information. Federal law gives consumers the right to limit some but not all sharing. Federal law also requires us to tell you how we collect, share, and protect your personal information. Please read this notice carefully to understand what we do.

What?

The types of personal information we collect and share depend on the product or service you have with us. This information can include:

- Social Security number and account balances
- Payment history and transaction history
- Overdraft history and checking account information

When you are no longer our customer, we continue to share your information as described in this notice.

How?

Who we are

Who is providing this notice?

First City Bank

What we do

How does First City Bank protect my personal information?

To protect your personal information from unauthorized access and use, we use security measures that comply with federal law. These measures include computer safeguards and secured files and buildings.

Other safeguards to protect this information are in place and is limited to the appropriate employees for whom access is necessary.

How does First City Bank collect my personal information?

We collect your personal information, for example, when you

- Open an account or apply for a loan
- Provide employment info or give us your contact information
- Show your driver's license

We also collect your personal information from others, such as credit bureaus, affiliates, or other companies.

Why can't I limit all sharing?

Federal law gives you the right to limit only

- sharing for affiliates' everyday business purposes—information about your creditworthiness
- affiliates from using your information to market to you
- sharing for nonaffiliates to market to you

State laws and individual companies may give you additional rights to limit sharing.
